INFORMED CONSENT FOR BIOFEEDBACK/EEG NEUROFEEDBACK TRAINING

Lori coda offers EEG (brainwave) biofeedback/Neurofeedback training to clients requesting such services. The training is offered to children and adults, either self-referred or identified by parents, doctors, licensed mental health providers or therapists,

The Neurofeedback training (brain-exercise) that Lori Coda provides is a modality for increasing a person's ability to self-regulate. It may be helpful for increased focus, managing stress, communication, relatedness and may improve academic or learning challenges. There is no guarantee that you or your child will improve from the neurofeedback training.

Lori Coda is experienced and has advanced training in both Neurofeedback and in Qeeg Brain-Mapping. In addition, she is licensed in Connecticut as a special education teacher and has a private practice in social skills coaching. She utilizes neurofeedback to enhance sociability and focus. She measures progress during and after training

I understand that Lori Coda is not licensed by any board in Connecticut and does not diagnose, treat, prevent or cure any physical or mental disorder. If I have or my child has a physical or mental disorder Lori Coda will collaborate with my licensed provider/doctor of care so that our time together may be helpful to the process.

Neurofeedback Training has been the subject of more than 30 years of research. The training appears to be harmless as far as is know at present and no injuries have been reported in the experience of Lori Coda, or in a review of research literature. Neurofeedback does not do anything to your child. It is not a treatment. It is a training process. The instruments are merely measuring devices similar to a thermometer. Sensors are placed on you or your child's head and you or your child is given information about what is being measured. Nevertheless, beyond this, Lori Coda does not make any representation concerning the safety of effectiveness of the training. Neurofeedback training has not been evaluated by the FDA. Clients should continue ongoing therapies until otherwise advised by a physician.

When you agree to participate in this training, you or your child is not obligated to complete the training if for any reason you believe it is not in your or your child's best interest. This means you may discontinue participation at any time. Training results will be available to clients and/or parents.
